

OPTIFERT BV Chelo Bolus

An Ideal Blend for Optimum Performance

Repeat breeding (RB) is a substantial problem in cattle breeding leading to large economic loss for the dairy producer due to more inseminations, increased calving interval and increased culling rates (Lafi et al., 1992). Repeat breeding has been defined as failure to conceive from 3 or more regularly spaced services in the absence of detectable abnormalities.

Anoestrus

The cow is not observed in oestrus either because she has not come into oestrus (not cycling) or because oestrus was not detected (cycling)

Cystic ovarian diseases in cows are usually seen in the first two months post calving. Ovarian cysts are characteristics as structures greater than 2.5 cm in diameter remaining on an ovary for more than 10 days.
